The Pennsylvania Floods.

Pittsburg, May 18—More rain is prophesied a sorry sight this morning. The water had receded but eight inches and the entire western and northern portions of the city are still submerged. It is estimated that including the suburbs of Valencia and Kensington not less than 3,000 persons have been driven from their homes. When the water subsides at the warm rays of the sun stale the ... now covered by three ... of four feet of water ... and pestilence are sure to ... the result. No trains were moving on either of the railway lines today and it is feared that numerous bridges along the lines have been carried off. The city is in a frightful condition and business is at a standstill. The water continued rising at Franklin all night, making French creek the highest ever known. All the lower part of the city is flooded, the Venango Hide brush factory and other business ... unable to do business. The New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio tracks are under water for several miles and trains will be unable to run the balance of the week.

Still Raining.

Buffalo, May 18.—There was no cessation in the rainfall here last night and this morning it was worrying. The roads were all up by washouts were slowly resuming traffic. The work of repairing the breakwater at Buffalo Harbor creek ... completed and a steamer came out ... when the first train crossed it, and through which trains was resumed.

High Water Notes.

At Fairfield, Me.—The river here is the highest for ten years. The Fairfield boom has broke and three million logs have gone down the stream.

At Lockport, N. Y.—The Erie canal has overflowed its banks and has done much damage between here and Gasport.

At Tonawanda, N. Y., the rain caused the canal to rise four feet above the normal level. All the lowlands in this vicinity are turned into lakes.

At Mount Morris, N. Y., the valley is nearly all under water and farms are flooded and much damage done.

Grave apprehension is felt among the New Hampshire and Maine lumbermen on account of the swollen streams and rivers.

The Southern Floods.

New Orleans, May 18.—The last account places the break in the levee near Grand Lake, which occurred yesterday at 10 o'clock and is still widening. President Gray of the Texas Pacific road, who is fighting like a battle with the rains in Arkansas, says the crevasse will overflow a part of every one of the new 3 parishes in Louisiana. Engineers are guarding the Arkansas side of the river by throwing sacking from the opposite side cutting the levees, and will shortly prosecute active operations to-day.

At the afternoon session on the annual meeting of the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Assembly the election of officers resulted in the choice of W. H. Roberts, of Texas, president; Rev. Dr. William Cox Bartley, of New York, Avenue Church, and Thomas C. Bowen, Bryan Sandalland S. V. Hoffman, of the Central Presbyterian church.

The Synod of Kansas.

The beginning of the Synod had arrived, ... the opening sermon ... preached by Rev. W. H. Roberts, retired elder, ... with the Lord's ... ... William Kettle's hymn, "All People that on Earth do Dwell," was sung by the entire congregation. Rev. Herrick Jackson read a part of the fifteenth chapter of Isaiah, and a part of St. Matthew. Rev. Joseph T. Smith led the assembly in prayer. The anthem from the oratorio of Elijah was rendered by the choir.

The sermon was then delivered by Dr. Young, the moderator, who took for his text the parable of Nebuchadnezzar, "And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed and the kingdom shall not be left for other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever." Daniel ii.

"And I say unto you that thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

At the close of the sermon Dr. Young ... and prayer, which followed. Dr. Bartlett, ... announced a number of arrangements ... the Synod's meetings and other ... of religious interest in the city. After ... the Synod proceeded to ... when the ... Charles L. Thompson, D.D., prayed and pronounced the benediction and the Synod was ... duly ...

Floods in the Northwest.

Spokane Falls, Wash., May 18.—The floods throughout Northern Idaho and the ... are ... Reports ... and the damage already done will amount to many hundreds of thousands of dollars. Several of the large railway bridges of the Union Pacific, Northern Pacific and the Great Northern have ... washed away.

A Village Burned.

Hartville, Wis., May 18.—Seventeen business buildings and residences were burned at Montfort (Grant county) this morning. The business part of the village was practically wiped out. Loss, $75,000; insurance not given. It is Montfort's second fire visit in eight weeks, and it is believed that incendiaries are at work.

Railroad Shops Burned.

Colfax, Wash., May 18.—Fire at Starbuck last night destroyed the Union Pacific machine and car shops, the round house, nineteen locomotives and all other railroad property except the coal bunkers. The loss will amount to over $100,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

An Earthquake Shock.

San Francisco, May 18.—A shock of earthquake lasting several seconds was felt here at 10:06 o'clock this morning.

Denver, May 18.—The committee consisting of Alderman Fox, Dotson and Hunter, to which was referred the charges preferred by William H. Hyatt and M. D. Carrigan against the members of the police force, met this morning. During the session yesterday afternoon Mr. Hyatt ... to have the counsel and the ... examined. The matter was taken under advisement and this morning the committee decided not to open the safes because they deemed it ... their authority to do so. The committee will report their decision at the next session of the City Council and Mr. Carrigan will undoubtedly keep his seat.

The Infanta Arrives.

Queenstown, S. L., May 18.—The Spanish steamer Maria Christina, having on board the Spanish Infanta Eulalia, ... Secretary of Queen Regent Christina, arrived at this port this evening. Prince Antonio De Bourbon, husband of the Princess, is with her. Her suite consists of the Duke of Tamames, chamberlain to the Infanta, and two ladies in waiting. The steamer was not expected until some time to-morrow, but made an exceptionally quick trip and was sighted off Roche's Branch at 5:40 this afternoon.

Press Club's Convention.

St. Paul, May 18.—Ford's Music Hall was comfortably filled for to-night's open session of the Press Club's convention. The programme consisted of music, addresses by Munn Halsead and E. V. Smalley, selections of humorous verse by Hamlin Garland, and an address on "Women in Journalism" by Mrs. Conger. After the close of the session a reception was tendered the delegates by various organizations and citizens generally in the commercial club rooms.

Judge Chrisman Married.

Jackson, Miss., May 18.—Judge J. R. Chrisman, who made a national reputation in his dealing with the Whitecap mob at Brookhaven recently, and Mrs. M. T. Chaillon of this city were married at the residence of the bride's daughter, Mrs. Baker, this afternoon. Governor Stone and ex-Governor Lowry were among the few guests. It is understood Judge and Mrs. Chrisman ...

Knocked Out by McCarthy.

New Orleans, May 18.—George La Blanche, the Marine, was knocked out in the sixteenth round by Billy McCarthy of Australia, to-night. The fight was for a purse of $1,000 before the Crescent City Athletic club.

A Stroke of Paralysis.

Ogden, May 18.—A special to The Republican from Nebraska City says: Ex-Senator Chas. H. Van Wyck was stricken with paralysis to-day. The stroke is light, but owing to the General's advanced age may ... serious.

Weather Indications.

Washington, May 18.—For Colorado: Light showers; colder; northwest gales.

What Cheap Hydrogen Means.

An engineer at Milan has succeeded in discovering a process of making hydrogen on a large scale and so cheaply that in producing 1,300 cubic meters a day this gas will cost only 1 cent per cubic meter. Considering the fact that the elasticity, the lightest of all known and very inflammable, admits of complete combustion, emits no smoke while burning, leaves no ashes or other products, gives the most intense heat obtainable and surpasses in power the electric light, one may readily comprehend the importance of this discovery if true.—New York Telegram.

Looking For Objectionable Things.

Dr. Johnson listened not over patiently one day at a dinner to a prude who sat beside him who was gossiping, and when she said with what was meant to be an arch glance—"Oh, doctor, dear, I owe some very bad words in your dictionary the other day," the harassed man said explosively, "You must have been looking for them, madam!"—Boston Globe.

GRAND ARMY VETERANS.

There is nothing particularly new or startling in connection with the Grand Army encampment which is in session at Pueblo this week. The attendance is somewhat larger than usual and perhaps a trifle more interest is felt in the department election than last year, but there is little public interest in these perfunctorial meetings. And why should there be? The Grand Army is the embodiment of a past, a past great and glorious, but a past peculiarly their own. No secret order with complex ritual, guarded with dreadful oaths and stern sentinels, can protect its membership as does the Grand Army. Only those who shared its glories can appreciate its sentiments and partake of its pleasures. The world cannot and would not forget all that it accomplished, and in spite of all that is said, the national heart is warm towards the noble soldiers of the late war, but between the veteran and the rest of the nation history has drawn a line which cannot be crossed. As they gather in their reunions from time to time we can only testify our respect and our appreciation; we can only bid them welcome and godspeed; we can only help them in such ways as we can, we can only stand outside their temple with bared heads. Only they have the right to enter, only they are consecrated by Memory.

COLORADO'S RESOURCES.

Colorado is generally known as a mining State. It is not generally known that her agricultural products are nearly twice as great in value as the mining output, and also that the value of the manufactured products exceeds in value the products of the mines. Colorado is so large a State that there may be large tracts of waste land and yet have left more fertile land than many of the smaller States. It has a greater area than England, Wales, Ireland, Connecticut, Delaware and New Jersey combined. It is as large as all New England with Ohio thrown in. No one can tell the future possibilities of this great State. It will have a steady, stable growth.

Our prosperity does not depend on the amount of rainfall. Our great industries in the diversity of our industries. Any country which has but one industry is a poor country. It is either feast or famine. Kansas, the Dakotas and Russia are not desirable countries in which to live because they depend to a great extent upon one thing. In order to be entirely successful the different industries must go hand in hand, one being the natural complement of the other. Thousands of our own citizens who took advantage of the recent low rates to see something of their own State were not only surprised but astonished at the magnificent and varied resources of Colorado. The income from the tourist travel increases each year. When the water is stored in our mighty mountains and utilized for irrigating and manufacturing purposes, who will dare to put a limit on our development?

CLEVELAND THE REFORMER.

The announcement that President Cleveland contemplates an extension of the civil service reform idea which will completely wipe out the spoils system, and secure to the government service only those who are best qualified, regardless of political considerations, was not altogether unexpected. There is no reason why the views which he has frequently expressed with considerable freedom should not be taken as the honest declaration of feelings in the matter, and his experience in the past few weeks has been such as to incline him to the opinion that the time of the President is too valuable to waste in examining and adjusting the claims of partisans to political preferments. If Mr. Cleveland has felt this more strongly than his predecessors it is partly on account of his personality and partly on account of the circumstances. Not for thirty years has there been such a political revolution as happened last spring when Mr. Cleveland was inaugurated, and never was there such a rush for public office and such a demand on the time and attention of the chief executive. How little inclined is Mr. Cleveland to respond to such a demand is evident. No one who has read his public utterances can doubt that he feels the responsibility of his office. Indeed his chief fault lies in a disposition to magnify his own part in the government and to overlook the opinions and the privileges of others. Beyond all question Mr. Cleveland believes that he has been directly commissioned to secure certain changes in the government and policy and he intends to give his personal supervision to directing the work of his party in executing the popular will. The parcelling out of patronage and the settling [illegible] not only necessarily painful to him, but it presents an unavoidable interference with his most cherished purposes. He does not feel "consecrated" to such work.

Thus while the views of President Cleveland in regard to the importance of the Executive department in the general government will not gain the assent of many students of the Constitution, there can be no doubt that if he succeeds in relationship the civil service upon a basis of business qualifications free from political considerations, he will be doing the country a real service of great and lasting importance and one which will command for him an enviable position among the presidents.

That President Cleveland will not accomplish this purpose without opposition is evident. To many a politician, Republican as well as Democrat, politics without office seeking and office getting is unthinkable, but Mr. Cleveland's position is so evidently endorsed by every patriotic and business consideration that we cannot doubt of the ultimate accomplishment of the proposed reform. No good reason has ever been alleged why public office should be made the reward for party service. Success to President Cleveland's reform movement!

THE TRIP TO THE FAIR.

What to go to the World's Fair, where to stay and what the rates of travel will be are problems which many are seeking to solve. Nearly all the exhibits will probably be in place by the first of June and as this is a delightful month we can see no reason why it is not well to plan a visit to the great exposition at that time. July and August will be hotter and at that time the city will be more crowded. Those who cannot arrange to attend in June will do well to wait until September.

No one need fear extortionate charges or lack of accommodations in Chicago. The hotel facilities are not excelled probably not equaled on the continent. Seminaries, University buildings, Y. M. C. A. buildings and private residences are and will be thrown open for the accommodation of visitors. Rooms can be [illegible] to Jackson Park at from seventy five cents to two dollars per day.

There appears to be a general impression that a round trip rate of thirty dollars, good for three months, will be established. That it will not be more than thirty-five dollars seems certain. A reasonable rate, say thirty dollars, ought to be established and held till the close of the Fair.

The Bering Sea tribunal has adjourned until next Tuesday, after listening to an exhaustive argument from Sir Charles Russell in support of the British side of the contention. Judging from the published reports the British counsel seem to rely largely on the absence of any established right on the part of the United States government and conveniently ignore any charges of inhumanity against the deep sea sealers, or the claims of necessity for the preservation of the seal herds. From all reports it seems that the Americans are getting decidedly the best of the controversy, but it will not do to hastily assume that the decision will be in our favor. It is natural to suppose that the reports sent to this country are somewhat partial.

The Russian treaty still continues to be a subject for talk and criticism. Most of this is a mere matter of surprise, and until the exact terms of the treaty are made public silence is the most becoming part. We cannot believe, however, that a treaty has been concluded in which the rights of honest men are not protected regardless of their political opinions. The officers of this government are not lacking in perspicacity, nor are they ignorant of the traditional policy of our government in regard to political refugees. We venture the assertion that in practice the treaty will secure the punishment of criminals, and nothing more.

The dastardly use of dynamite in connection with the enforcement of the liquor laws at Muscatine, Iowa, has reacted against the criminals, and there is now a fair prospect that all the saloons of the place will be permanently closed. So far the friends of the law have rallied to its support nobly, and though there are mutterings and threats, no more open violence has been attempted. No pains will be spared to detect and punish those already guilty, and extreme precautions will be taken to prevent any further outrages. All this is as it should be.

The year 1893 will be a memorable one for natural catastrophes. A long list of disasters has extended in almost [illegible] from the opening of the year, and as yet there is no sign of their cessation. While the southern floods continue with unabated violence public attention is drawn to fresher disasters along the great lakes. It is a pitiful story of swollen streams, ruined crops, houses swept from their foundations and even loss of life. How trifling the discomforts of occasional storms in Colorado in comparison with such disasters.

There is a prospect that the much talked of Cherokee Strip will soon be a thing of the past. It is now expected that the six million acres will be thrown open to settlement by Sept. 15. An effort is making to provide a different method of allotment from that which caused the disgraceful scenes in Oklahoma, and it has even been suggested that the would-be settlers adjust their claims by drawing lots.

The bitterness of English partisanship is a subject of frequent surprise to Americans. A recent instance took place on Wednesday when Mr. Gladstone, who was attending a reception at the Imperial Institute in company with the Prince of Wales, was hissed and hooted by the crowds in attendance. The demonstration is generally condemned in London, more however on account of the indirect rudeness to the Prince than as a disgraceful exhibition of partisan harrowness.

These are dull times in politics, but it may be worth mentioning that by the election of the Senator from North Smithfield the Republicans have finally secured control of the Rhode Island legislature on a joint ballot. This will enable them to elect Republican State officers unless further complications ensue.

Interesting Teaching.

Lessons teaching should be oppressive and should start from familiar objects, for instance in the building of a house. The first work to commence with is the foundation, requiring the gathering of wood, the growth of plants and the process of combustion. Coal, bricks, cinders, lime, follow. The formation of clay, marl to manufacture sandstone and plaster comes next. In this house will be noticed iron, lead, electric [illegible] Then glass, glue, whitewash, putty. These materials should be handled by the pupil and the processes shown by means of apparatus.

No philosophizing should as yet be done. About here introduce, just as the truly artful occasion arises, all the matters of science can be learned, wherein but a limited number of principles—the elements. Now fire, flame, water may be carefully studied. Charcoal, heat, gas, matches and their chemistry come next naturally. Then the [illegible] Carolina [illegible] would embrace many manufactures and processes.

The whole can be treated concentrically, with chapters on clothing, food, cooking, writing, reading. Clothing includes the textile fabrics; food, the ampelideæ of bread, which would be an intellectual poem, explaining the growth of wheat, the nature of yeast, the relationship between [illegible] The study of life and a flower is so far-reaching, that the most subtle game of chess can be played.—Chicago Post.

Have Pity For Bashful Men.

Girls, do not laugh at the mistakes of the bashful man or boy. You have no idea how your jokes cut such wounds in him, and there is no use in making such sensitive creatures miserable. No matter how much a little woman of the world you think yourself you can remember certain epochs in your past, even that make you grow warm from head to foot just to think of at this or that date.

Even though today your manners are as nearly perfect as possible, some depart- [illegible] ed's remarks at a time when to render a room that he had stepped into an ordeal that you would have avoided if you could have done so without shocking the proprieties that always seemed such fearful things. Can't you not remember feeling that every [illegible] fixed upon the smallest details of your attire with harsh and irritating criticism in its glance, and for all time losing your feet and hands ceased to have an animated existence, and though [illegible] you felt as though you were all head and feet?

Into the memories of the manhood and of the ladies that went around at your expense is hard to bear by memory as it was in reality. The [illegible] from coming fun of the bashful men.—Exchange.

Overeducation.

"It is now asserted by many that a man can, or a woman, either—be overeducated," said E. E. Hargis. "People have so many cads and cranks who are 'educated' that they have really begun to assert that a person may be so educated—know too much. Good old American horse sense will outgrow this idea soon, I know. It isn't education that is troubling the cads and long haired cranks. It don't know too much that is troubling any one. It's the simple fact that a minor knowledge of a hundred arts and sciences has shrouded in bewildering [illegible] people."

They run to this meeting and that 4 o'clock [illegible] and this 7 o'clock [illegible] and that evening class for the instantaneous acquirement of a superficial knowledge of the German master works, until they have become befuddled. They don't actually know what they are doing, and so they gather about and talk on a dozen subjects, only to make some poor striving soul, imagine that he doesn't know anything at all and that they are supreme. As a matter of fact, they are wasting their time, and so is anyone else who listens to them.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Our Great Country.

It has recently been discovered that on American soil the sun never sets. The British have for years sung a song in glorification of the fact that the sun never sets on the soil of that clime.

But, lo! now comes the stars and stripes, which are never out of sight of the sun. The exact situation of the geographical center of the United States is a surprise to any one who has not given the subject careful attention. The most eastern point of the United States is Quoddy head, Maine, the most western, Attoo Island, Alaska, the most northern, Point Barrow, Alaska, the most southern, Key West. The center of the quadrangular figure formed by uniting the four points is located at crossing of 55 degrees north latitude and 110 degrees west longitude, about 420 miles north of the north line of Montana. It is also true of the United States as of Great Britain that the sun never sets on our territory, for when it is p. m. on Attoo Island, Alaska, it is 9:30 a. m. of the following day at Eastport, Me.—Exchange.

America's First Recorded Eclipse.

The first observations of an eclipse of the sun taken by American astronomers were made on Long Island, Penobscot bay, on Oct. 27, 1780. On that occasion a party from [illegible] Rev. [illegible] W. Hollis, LL. D., having obtained the consent of the British general who was in command of Castine, landed at Bounty Cove and made the house of one Shubael Williams their headquarters. The totality of the eclipse was visible only at Penobscot bay and inland, a fact which would make such an event one of great import even today. It is but justice to add that the observations made by the Harvard scientists were very successful, notwithstanding the fact that their instruments were very crude and inaccurate.—New York Press.

Wrote His Will on His Own Body.

There lately died in Mexico a miser of the name of Monecke. His relatives were unwilling that his body should be interred, as he had tattooed his will over his chest with some red pigment instead of using pen and ink. The court decreed that the remarkable "human document" should be copied and then presentation, duly attested in the presence of witnesses. This was done, and the court pronounced the queer will genuine.—St. Louis Republic.

The Seer of Charing Cross.

The seer of Charing Cross road, London, was often visited and consulted by the late Prince Consort, Lord Lytton, Charles Dickens, George Eliot, Lord Beaconsfield and many other notables. The seer of Kings Cross also became quite famous through his predictions relating to the assassination of the queen's judges, in which he foretold the failure of the anarchists' plots and the injuries that befell the Marquis of Lorne, Edgar Lee in Arran.

Ancient Needlework.

Some of the oldest needlework extant was found in Egyptian and Egypto-Roman tombs—a rough sort of flaxen cloth, like the bath towelling of our own day. It has loops of wool worked with some kind of needle, placed on one side of the stout body, and a kind of tapestry partly woven and partly outlined in needlework. The multitudes which an insatiable modern curiosity has disturbed, are wrapped in linen, as [illegible] the living were clothed, to the ravages of moth and the art of weaving the flax that grew so plentifully on the bank of the Nile was probably known [illegible] the Israelites during their sojourn in Egypt.

Ezekiel speaks of "fine linen with broidered work from Egypt." Aiden seems the natural ground and foundation of all embroidery. It often lasts longer than the work itself, can be cleaned and will outwear, or wear out, as also more easily and safely.—London Spectator.

Sherman Peshek of Pueblo adjutant of the Colorado division Sons of Veterans, inspected John A. Logan camp of this city last night. He expressed himself much pleased with the camp here, as it stands second in the State. He thinks the encampment here in July will be a great success.

Extorting and Extorting.

There were two "extortion socials" in the city last night. One by the First Presbyterian young people and the other by the Methodists at the residence of Miss M. E. Elmore on East Dale street. But they both had for their object the making of money and both were altogether successful in this regard.

The penny was resurrected in many ways. It was a penny to get in and a penny to get out, a penny to walk and a penny to talk, a penny to stand up and one to sit down and another for the privilege of looking around. Then the police officers with enormous stars arrested folks and the judges fined them a penny or more according to the heinousness of the crime, the [illegible] of the offender or the ability to prove an alibi. Then there were other pennies to be given up for ice cream and cake and most folks put in about twenty-five pennies before the close of the evening. There was quite a sum of money realized in both places. At the church it went for the support of "Church Edifice" at the Methodist gathering toward the expenses of a delegate to the Y. P. S. C. E. convention at Montreal.

NEWSPAPER FOLLY.

That was a striking truth which Mr. Robert White included in the paper which he read before the National Editorial association on Thursday. "People don't care what the editor of a paper thinks about his odious contemporary who is running an opposition journal. They attach no more importance to it than they do to the feelings of the butcher towards the baker."

The object of a newspaper is the publishing of news, and there is room in this direction for all the surplus energy that is lying around the newspaper office. The editor who employs his talents and space in abusing his contemporary and criticising the manner in which some other paper is conducted is very apt to be neglecting matter of more importance to himself and his subscribers.

Fortunately for all concerned the view put forth by Mr. White is the one accepted by reputable modern newspapers, and the old-fashioned way of abuse and fault-finding is now almost entirely confined to backwoods weeklies and amateur journals.

HOME RULE PROGRESS.

The adjournment of the discussion on the Home Rule bill until after the Whitsuntide holidays affords a short breathing space to the contesting hosts, and an opportunity to consider progress. The Conservatives will point with satisfaction to the adoption of a clause asserting the supremacy of the Imperial Parliament, and scorn the Liberal announcement that there was never any question in regard to the principle there embodied. Outside of this however the Conservatives have no room for self congratulation. While their opposition has been ingenious and stubborn, it has not been successful, and seems to be losing rather than gaining strength.

On the other hand the Liberals can display actual accomplishments in the passage of two clauses, one of them involving the vital principle of the bill, the establishment of an Irish Parliament.

So far the advantage seems to be distinctly with the Liberals.

AN EXAMPLE FROM CHINA.

If the man in the moon for instance were looking down upon the earth, and observing the relations between China and the United States, he might perhaps make a mistake in deciding which is the Christian and civilized nation and which the heathen and barbarous one. Certain it is that whether we judge actions by the strict morality of the pagan philosophers or by the gentler precepts of the New Testament, on a trial of recent actions towards each other, the Chinese government would have a better standing before any impartial tribunal than that of the United States.

Because China has set a wise example of forbearance, as announced by the declaration of her minister at Washington that no reprisals would follow the execution of the Geary law, it does not justify that iniquitous measure. It remains a shame and a disgrace to this country and will do so until it is repealed.

UNCLE SAM'S WATCH DOG.

In the Washington dispatches of the past few days there have been a number of pleasing items, bits of news which afforded satisfaction to the friends of good government regardless of party throughout the country. But of them all none is quite so pleasing as the announcement that Mr. Holman is to be removed from the Committee on Appropriations and put in some place where his peculiar talents can be exercised without so much harm to public interests.

With a considerable amount of ability, a strong personal influence and an acquaintance with public affairs and public men that ought to teach him better, Mr. Holman has for a number of years constituted himself a watch dog of the treasury and, by blocking needed appropriations for various important objects, has done an incalculable amount of harm and incidentally some good. To carry out the metaphor, the "watch dog" has become a nuisance, seriously interfering with the business of his master and annoying the customers and friends who come to the house to visit and to do business. It is a matter for regret that a man with Mr. Holman's talents does not employ them to better advantage, but since he does not, the only thing to be done is to put him where he cannot do so much harm.

Adjutant-General Artz of Kansas, having escaped from the majesty of Colorado law, signalized his elevation to the Kansas militia by an attempt to use that arm of the State government to enforce illegal usurpation and to coerce the representatives of the people. Failing in this he evolved the brilliant scheme of organizing an armed body of men, to be known as "provost guards" for the declared purpose of accomplishing the violation of the laws whenever they should interfere with the purposes of the party of which Mr. Artz is a member. Only the mind of a Populist of the Artz variety could have conceived the idea of the maintenance of popular government by the help of a standing army, and how made an attempt to put it into serious practice. The regular militia were guilty of no acts of oppression or tyranny, but they properly refused to be made implements for such acts under an authority acting contrary to the law, and with this as his excuse Mr. Artz gravely asks the State government to sanction the establishment of an armed body of certain men to be held in readiness as a standing army for the service of the Populists. The refusal of the State Militia board to sanction it is gratifying, probably settles the matter, and Artz's provost guards shall probably hear no more of the Provisional Guards. It would be well for Kansas if we could say as much for Mr. Artz.

Since Americans began to talk of the World's Fair here has been just as very serious inconvenience felt by the poorer laboring classes in that country. Artizans in small towns and cities, especially in the manufacturing districts, have found their employment gradually falling off, and their wages reduced, until many of them have found it impossible to meet their obligations promptly. Many have lost their credit, and in some instances have found that the banks upon which they were dependent had failed and they were without resources. The object lesson is a valuable one. This is the exact condition of affairs that prevailed in this country under the old tariff, which it is hoped such experiences are likely to be the means of bringing to a speedy revival.

Chancellor William has made another speech on the Army bill which is less open to criticism than his former outbursts. Taken to itself the declaration that German unity is necessary to the existence of the Fatherland is one in which all German patriots may coincide. But a great deal depends on the point of view, and from the point of view of the Emperor, German unity means simply unquestioning assent to imperial measures, and an unfaltering obedience to the imperial will.

The Infanta Eulalia has arrived in New York, and questions of Precedence and Royal Etiquette may be expected to form a staple topic of conversation for some time to come. By the way it is better to say "Yoo-lah-le-ah," with the accent on the next to the last syllable, rather than Eulalie, which is French. A Spanish princess is justly entitled to a Spanish name.

Gratifying results are reported from the first trip of the new cruiser New York which took place from Delaware Breakwater to Boston. The run was a successful one in every respect, and it is expected that the official trial will demonstrate that the United States now possesses the fastest armored cruiser in the world.

As might be expected Governor Pennoyer of Oregon has expressed himself on the Chinese situation, and he has expressed himself as might have been expected. Governor Pennoyer's method of attaining notoriety ignores the quality of the notice he seeks to attract.

RELIGIOUS WORLD.

Notes and Comments by the Rev. Jas. H. Greer, D. D.

The Episcopal convention has changed the canon so as to permit women to vote at parish meetings.

The Bishop of Winchester, Dr. Thorold, dedicates a volume of sermons just published, to "the dear memory of Phillips Brooks . . . strong, fearless, tender, eloquent, incapable of meanness, blazing with indignation at all kinds of wrong, his heart and mind deep and wide as the ocean at his door, simple and transparent as a child, keen with all the keenness of his race." This is but one of the many tributes to the late Bishop emanating from great men on the other side of the water. Few Americans ever won from the English such warm and unaffected appreciation.

It was a remarkable and thrilling story which with the interest, simplicity and modesty Mr. Percy Alden told at the Presbyterian church last Sunday night of the work carried on at the Mansfield College settlement in East London. That a young man only three years out of the theological seminary should have put himself in sympathetic touch with 10,000 working men, should have gathered about him fifteen or more sympathetic and efficient helpers, most of them college men and women, should have brought light and comfort into thousands of homes and should have accomplished so much for the religious, moral, social and political regeneration of the district constitutes, also, other I am inclined to think, an unparalleled achievement in the annals of philanthropic work.

The annual meeting of the American McAll Association was held in the Emmanuel Baptist Church, Albany, on April 26 and 27. The McAll Mission is too well known to require from us any explanation of its methods of operation. It has been to Paris and France in many respects far more than the Salvation Army has been to London and England. A Paris mob, if not more degraded, is far more unmanageable, than that the lowest classes of London. The London "submerged tenth" is stupid; that of Paris, wild, defiant, believing neither in God nor man. Among such people Mr. McAll, in a very humble way, began his work, and its story reads like a new chapter in the Acts of the Apostles. Whole districts in Paris and France have experienced what may be called almost a spiritual revolution. At the anniversary at Albany addresses were made by various workers, and many interesting facts were made prominent. The French government has shown its sense of the worth of McAll's services by making him a Knight of the Legion of Honor, a token of respect but once before shown on account of similar service, that once being when Oberlin received the same decoration by order of Louis XVIII. The work is carried on not only by mission halls, but by boats which navy along the rivers; by mission work in the soldiers' dispensaries, open-air preaching and mission to the children.

The logic that underlies such Christian effort of to-day is summed up in a saying of Principal Fairbairn's, the head of Mansfield College, under whom Mr. Alden was trained:

> The gospel of common sense and common humanity is unfriendly to common immorality, and whatever is unfriendly to common morality is hostile to the righteousness of man with God. . . . Give them pure gas, fit for water, short, wholesome food, we contribute to their character and moral improvement, and by contributing to their character, or moral improvement, we contribute to the possibility of their Christian perfection.

It will not do for a certain type of evangelical preachers to forget that this is logical for a sentimental or heretical saying.

Says The Christian Register:

Mr. Gladstone knew how to return good for evil. He is to-day said to be grappling out of his way to speak kindly of the noble speech of Joseph Chamberlain's son, which, to us, with a gracious few, was one that could fall hard and to cling to a father's heart. Chamberlain, at the first mention of his name, lifted his head and replied generously and nobly. "What a courteous, gallant gentleman he is!" was the comment of the opposite party. We should be elated for an instant to think ourselves in the same school, ready to "live and learn" with a boy, and covered his face with his hands for folly and emotion. Those near him said the tears poured down in happy relief, and some other incidents, considering that Mr. Chamberlain's speech was in the exclusions of bitterness against the Grand Old Man.

The world and the Central presbyterian tells us that Dr. Dougall, of Toronto, says in his report to the Ontario government that out of 27,000 children brought to Canada by Miss Macpherson, Dr. Barnardo, Mr. Quarrier and others, from Great Britain, only 5 per cent. have turned into crime. As these children were nearly all homeless waifs gathered in London and other great cities, the greatness of the results viewed from the standpoint of Christianity or humanity or political economy are most inspiring. Where is romance realized more than in this work for neglected children?

Says The Congregationalist:

The work of the Lord's kingdom in New Orleans is so far completed that the editors of the Southwestern Presbyterian have leisure to write a four column editorial against "Sunday-school speaking and praying as a practice in religious meetings." The W. C. T. U. and the Y. P. S. C. E. are troubling the Presbyterian waters down there more than the lottery or the prize fight.

St. Bartholomew's Church of New York City (Dr. Greer's) on a recent Sunday took up a collection of $77,89 to pay for improving and enlarging the church. Dr. Greer told the people that in the four years of his rectorship, the Church had raised $1,000,000 for charitable purposes, and might now well be inclined to do something for itself.

Said a little girl in Phillips Brooks' parish, when told of the Bishop's death, by her mother, "How glad the angels will be."

Dr. Barrows waxes warm in his admiration of the prospects opened by the Congress of Religions at Chicago this summer. It is worth the whole cost of the meeting to have the idea of human fraternity so widely advertised. He says:

> It is now confidently expected that representatives of the leading historic faiths will be present in the parliament. A Confucian scholar has been commissioned by the Chinese government to attend. Buddhist scholars, representing both the Northern and Southern Church, among them Rev. Zitsuzen Ashitsu, editor of a Buddhist magazine in Tokyo, a high priest of Shintoism, Moslem scholars from India, Parsees from Bombay, representatives of various types of Hinduism, eminent Christian missionaries, leading scholars from Europe and America, and probably representatives of the Russian, Armenian and Bulgarian churches—will all have part in his great meeting. Rev. H. Adler, Chief Rabbi of the British Empire, suggests as a text for the parliament the words of the Hebrew prophet: "Have we not all one Father? Hath not one God created us?" It is surely something unparalleled in history to find co-operating in one religious movement, men as diverse as Mr. Gladstone, Cardinal Gibbons, Justice Ameer Ali of Calcutta, H. R. H. Prince Chandradat Chudadhja, Bankok, Siam; Cat, Mahto Prochet of Rome; Professor Max Muller and Rabbi Maymon of Berlin; Dr. Miller of the Christian college, Madras; the Bishop of Worcester, the First Secretary of the Chinese Legation in Washington, D. C.; Messrs. Parez, Professor Boston of the University of France; Dr. James Martineau; Dr. Ellinwood, the eminent Secretary of Presbyterian Missions; Professor Von Orelli of Basle; Archbishop Ryan of Philadelphia; Dr. Alador Szalo of Budapest; Dr. Lunn of the Review of the Churches; the Dean of Canterbury; Dr. Wahlenstrom of Sweden; the editor of The Hindu; Professor Moulton of Cambridge; Lord Egerton of Tatton, Ecclesiastical Commissioner of Great Britain; Rev. Hugh Price Hughes; Count d'Alvella; Professor Banyin Nanjio; Mr. Mozoomdar; Professor Simon of Edinburgh; General William Booth; the editors of Buddhist periodicals; Count A. Bernstorff of Berlin; Professor J. Henry Thayer of Harvard; members of the Society of Friends; Rev. John Worcester of the New Jerusalem Church; Seth Ali Bilgrami, Director of Mines to his Highness the Nizam's government in the Deccan; Professor Riddel of Newfoundland; Rev. J. T. Gracey, D. D., President of the International Missionary Union; Professor Francis Balogh of the Reformed Theological School of Debreczen; professors in the universities of Utrecht and Leipzig, and disciples of Zoroaster in Bombay. It is evident that the fellowship between all these men of many faiths and nations is not the unscriptural fellowship of light and darkness, but the loving brotherhood of a common humanity, blessed with different degrees of spiritual illumination. "The sky is not the roof that covers but one family." The proposed conference, writes Professor Bratten, of Yale University, "will no doubt tend to remove prejudice, promote friendliness, and further the belief that all truth is from God, and that all religion, as a subjective experience, is a disclosure, however imperfect, of the abiding presence of the living God in the souls of his children."

In their recent explorations in Tibet Captain Bower and Dr. Thorold passed a chain of salt lakes, one of which, Bar Ba Tso, has an elevation of 17,000 feet above sea level, and is probably the highest lake in the world.

GREAT BUILDINGS.

THOSE TO BE SEEN AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Towers, Domes, Spires, Minarets, Giant Roofs, Ornamental Columns and Lofty Statuary. A Look at the State Buildings and Also Those Erected by Foreign Countries—The Decoration.

Written for The Gazette.

Chicago, May 17.—[Special.]—Let us see what we can see in a day's run through the exposition. It will be a good load, measured by the hundreds of buildings and beauties and novelties, very little compared with the sum total of things there to see. Assume that we enter the inclosure at the Fifty-seventh street entrance, where the electric elevated road has its terminus. For a time we may ride about the grounds, but we choose to walk, that we may the better see. It is early in the morning of a fine day, and the bracing air of the lake makes us feel strong enough to take in the entire exposition in a single day—so we bravely set out on foot.

The first glance about inspires us to unwonted energy. In the foreground is a cluster of beautiful buildings. The state buildings—the individual contributions of the states of the Union to the World's fair. Instantly our opinion of the vastness of the United States, of the importance, wealth and grandeur of its component commonwealths, rises many degrees. So numerous are these state buildings, and so numerous, that we scarcely know which first to enter, and, in the end we quite likely enter none, but slowly pass along and glance at their exterior, coming another day to behold their interiors. It is well that we reached this decision, for when we regret to think that all but one of the forty-four states of the territories, and that ten minutes devoted to each building would consume an entire day we perceive that it will not do to tarry. At every step we are tempted to linger, for some of these state structures are very handsome, but we press resolutely on. The most we can do to-day is to walk in front of all the buildings.

In fact, we soon alter our plans for the day's jaunt. Just now we have a glimpse past the Art gallery and across the big lagoon toward the southern end of the grounds. The spectacle delights and amazes. The [illegible] filled—not irregularly, confusingly, but with symmetrical and effective arrangement,—with towers, domes, spires, minarets, giant roofs, ornamental columns, lofty statuary. The glory and magnitude of the exposition have dawned upon us. It is so much larger than we even thought it that at once we say: "Well, this first day we'll not go in any of these buildings, but simply walk around and try to get the outer effect of every building on the grounds.

So with this new purpose in mind—it is always well to have some definite purpose or objective point when setting out on a ramble—we turn to the right and pass the buildings erected by South Dakota, Washington, Oregon, Colorado and California, and retrace our steps by Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan. Then passing to the left of the Fifty-seventh street entrance we have Nebraska, North Dakota and Kansas on our left hand, and Georgia, Tennessee, Minnesota, Arkansas and Kentucky on our right. Taking a good look down the avenue of states, to save going twice over the same ground, we behold Utah, Nevada, Idaho, New Mexico and North Carolina, and then turn through the interesting thoroughfare to the south past West Virginia, Virginia, Louisiana, Mississippi and Missouri. Occupying the whole south front of this square are the magnificent buildings of New York and Pennsylvania. As we turn north again through the next street Massachusetts, Vermont, Rhode Island and New Jersey are on our right, Delaware and Maryland on our left. Again reaching the northern avenue we see New Mexico, Arizona, Wyoming, Montana and Iowa on one side, and Connecticut, New Hampshire, Maine and Vermont on the other.

Now we are somewhat tired and sit down near the shore of Lake Michigan to rest. The water, with its moving picture of steamships and pleasure crafts, divides our attention with the splendid view of the Art palace and its annexes behind us. It is 10 o'clock, and since we have been at work we have seen nothing but the Art building and the state structures. Yet when we take the map of the exposition and calculate the distance traveled we find we have walked precisely two and a quarter miles. If this is the scale on which this exposition is built, we say to ourselves, we shall have to be up and doing.

Before us is another group of palaces, more costly and more beautiful, than the state houses. These are the buildings erected by the foreign nations, France, Great Britain, Germany, Mexico and Spain line the lake. Farther back, ranged along winding streets, and showing beautiful perspectives at every step, are Norway, Sweden, Ecuador, Guatemala, Brazil, Costa Rica, Hayti, East India, Chili, Columbia and several others. Charming are the views here we rush on. Great spires rise and a half has been necessary to simply see the foreign buildings, and time presses.

Now we take a rapid run around the Fisheries building, though often sometimes tempted forever, and cross the inlet canal and skirt the United States Government building. It is not a large building, as buildings go here, but to go around it requires a walk of nearly half a mile. Another half mile jaunt is necessary to see Uncle Sam's outdoor exhibit—the life-saving crew, the marine hospital, the harbor and channel buoys and the big guns. We leave ourselves a third of a mile by viewing the big brick battleship from the shore.

Here we come to the structure which we have had before our eyes and in our eyes all the time. It is the Isolation Building, itself a fifth of a mile in length. We do not stop to visit the green houses nor the Hooden temple which the Japanese have erected here on the lagoon.

A few minutes' walk gives us a view of the Woman's building and of the Illinois state house—the largest structure by the way to be seen on the grounds—and we have completed the grand circuit. We have had a glimpse of every important structure within the inclosure, and are able to say with pride and satisfaction that we appreciate the magnitude and the beauty of the exposition. Our senses limit speak eloquently to us of the efforts required to reach this knowledge, and gladly do we agree to leave the Midway plaisance or side-show feature of the exposition to another journey. Merely to see the grounds and the exteriors of the buildings we have walked fully eleven miles, and that is enough for one day.

The Prodigal Father" at the opera house this evening.

Entries for the County school races close on Tuesday evening next.

Messrs. S. Evans and Robert Cathcart are in the city from Marshall, Mo.

The Great Mountain Falls hotel is to open for the season on the 15th of June.

The last live bird shoot of the season will take place at the Country club at 2:30 p. m. today.

Mrs. Charles S. Sprague and children have returned from their California trip and are at The Antlers.

The Rock Island fast car made its appearance a day earlier than usual but was heartily welcomed yesterday.

Mr. Geo. T. Hall of Denver, traveling passenger agent of the Pennsylvania lines, was in the city yesterday on business.

Mr. M. J. Collins of the Cripple Creek Crusher, and Marshal Ed Wilson of Cripple Creek came down from camp last evening.

Mrs. Oliver Watrous has been at Cripple Creek for the past year, returned to the camp yesterday after a visit spent a week with friends in the city.

A special meeting of the Colorado Springs Athletic society will be held at [illegible] Thursday evening, May 25, at 8 o'clock. There is important business and a full attendance is desired.

Captain J. M. Johnson, formerly a prominent Kansas lawyer, has entered into partnership with Police Magistrate C. S. Adams to practice law in this city.

A crowd of women and children were attracted to the corner of Cucharras and Weber streets yesterday afternoon by the cries of several of them from a Wahsatch avenue woman, who had fainted, and, costs by Justice Walker yesterday.

The graduating exercises of the Colorado City High school occur this evening. There are two graduates. Dr. Snyder of the State Normal school is expected to deliver the address.

The colored man who froze his feet and hands at Hayden Divide last winter and who has been at the county house ever since, has been sent to the old soldiers' home at Leavenworth, Kas.

Mr. Henry H. Wolbert returned to his home in Delta last evening after a visit of several days in the city. Mr. Wolbert is connected with the leading bank in Delta and is enthusiastic over the great fruit district of the western slope.

It is probable that the city will dispose of its $20,000, 6 per cent. bonds at par. This will be a good rate in view of the present financial conditions in the East and the fact that the rate of interest is much lower than that ever carried by the city's bonds in previous issues.

The Aspen delegation of the G. A. R. which has been attending the Pueblo State encampment, stopped in the city yesterday. They were accompanied by the Winfield Scott Post No. 16 drum corps. The playing of the drum corps on the streets yesterday morning attracted a large crowd of people while they were serenading THE GAZETTE.

The County Commissioners are going to Turkey Creek the first of the coming week to look up the new road. They state that so far not a man from that part of the county has mentioned a new road to them. Before they can take steps to build a road anywhere it is necessary that a petition be presented and that it go through the proper legal form.

Mrs. H. L. Altman's residence, No. 332 West Costilla street, burned at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. The fire caught from a falling stove pipe, and the little frame building burned rapidly. The loss was about $400, with no insurance. The alarm was given by the furious blowing of the railroad engine whistles. The Jacksons put the first water on the fire.

Justice Shideler had a novel experience while trying a criminal case on Thursday. In the midst of the evidence a man and woman came in and explained that they wanted to be married and that they were in a hurry. The justice obligingly suspended the trial and made the twain one, while the prisoner at the bar witnessed the ceremony.

One of our local attorneys has had an experience in book buying that will probably teach him to patronize regular merchants hereafter. He purchased the International Dictionary from an agent and paid $10 for it as it was represented that he could not get it of the regular dealers. An inquiry at the stores shows him that he could have purchased the same book for $10.

A very artistic oil painting by Mr. Chas. Craig was displayed in Holbrook & Perkins's window yesterday. It is entitled "The Ute at Home," and represents the Indian sitting upon his horse in front of his tepee. Nearby is the ever-present dog, the squaw and the papoose. It is a very good subject and Mr. Craig has treated it skillfully, truthfully and attractively. A smaller painting from the same sketch is to be sent to the Duchess of Buckingham.

The North park walks are gradually being restored to a condition fit for public travel. The ditches have been dug out so that the water may run about the trees and the walks are being covered with loam and rolled hard. The job is not entirely completed, however, and one citizen, rather than walk on the gravel started across the grass where the sign says, "Keep Off." To an officer he was ingenuous and said "he'd rather pay a fine, than walk on such a miserable walk," and he did. In police court it was $1 and costs, amounting to $5.75. The citizens of North Nevada, Weber and Wahsatch are talking of raising a purse to reimburse the fine to the man who had the courage to walk across the grass and pay a fine rather than use such a disreputable walk as they have been obliged to endure for nearly a year.
